Approved For Release 2003/11/19 : CIA-RDP54-00216A000100040049-2

4 September 1952

| ΓΑΤ | MEMCRANDUM FOR: Office of Training   | 1 1                     |
|-----|--|-------------------------|
|     | SUBJECT : USSR Training Program  | f 1                     |
|     | In reference to point one, I feel that this type of program would contribute to analyst effectiveness if measures were taken to insure attendance.   | ₽ ;              |
|     | 2. This particular program was useful to me because I obtained a wealth of background data enabling me to re-evaluate what knowledge I already had.  |                         |
|     | 3. a. I am not an analyst so I will skip this, since the assumptions mentioned probably do not pertain to me.  |                         |
|     | b. Personally I found the economic lectures were boring and about 50 percent irrelavent. The others were interestingly presented.  |                         |
|     | c. The time allotted was generous, but not excessive. The two-hour periods with a ten minute break were satisfactory.  | * :                     |
|     | d. On an overall average the balance between lecture and discussion was satisfactory, however I would not favor certain periods devoted entirely to discussion.  | $ $$ $$ $ |
|     | 4. I think a limited amount of reading would be reasonable. I found occasional reference to Kirchner's "An Outline-History of Russia" quite helpful.   |                         |
|     | In addition I would restate my stand on attendance. I found it embar-rassing to be one of five (as happened several times) assembled before aprofessor, who is presumably on a consultant basis. If we have in the agencypeople who have all this information at hand, I suggest that they be prevailedupon to conduct such a course for fellow-employees, thus eliminating theexpense of the consultant's salary. | 1 v                     |
|     |  |                         |

STAT